We have a lot of cars, a lot of customers, you know, a pretty good track record with racing and drag racing and other things. So people see what we do or what, you know, they think they may want or, you know, we can take care of their needs.

I learn something every time I do an engine it seems like. I started doing Engine Masters in 2004, and I've missed a few years along the way. But every Engine Masters keeps me awake at night just thinking about everything. So we've always had a great experience with AMSOIL. Every time -- you know, we use their oil on other engines, too, that we build, and I don't worry about a film, breakdown, oil breakdown. The oil pressure is always consistent. I mean, we've tested oils back-to-back at our shop on the dyno, and AMSOIL is always one that we are able to make more power and beat competitors and not have to worry about.
